

Cassandra Kircher

Notes on On Not Marrying a Ranger

I started writing about the Park Service during graduate school after my seven years working at Rocky Mountain National Park. Initially, I wrote about the park as assignments for classes, and it wasn't until a couple years ago that friends suggested I finish a collection of essays about my National Park experiences and how these experiences determine my present relationship to nature.